Document Title: Introduction to NURI Manuals

The purpose of the NURI manuals is to describe

- rules and regulations
- procedures
- work flow

for the administration of the Northern Ugandan Resilience Initiative.

Each part of the manuals has an index number which uniquely identifies that part of the manual. The individual parts of the manuals can be changed by a document with a new index number indicated on its first page, stating on its last page which document index number it replaces.

When a document in this way is replaced, the rules, regulations, procedures etc. in it should no longer be followed.

The manuals in this way appear in two categories:

- current
- replaced

All NURI implementing units and entities should archive the relevant manuals in paper based and/or digital form. The current part of the manuals should be readily accessible for relevant staff in their day-to-day work situation.

The replaced parts must be archived for audit and control purposes and should be available with short notice.

This document replaces with effect from the above date a previous document with the index number:	none
